Preamble

We the members of the International Domestic Workers Federation (IDWF) commit ourselves to unite into a powerful force to overcome the exploitation and abuse experienced by domestic/household workers across the World. By domestic/household worker we mean any person engaged in domestic/household work within an employment relationship as worker.

In doing so we are guided by the following principles:

- Domestic work is work. Domestic/household workers must enjoy the same rights and dignity as other workers.
- Domestic/household workers are entitled to decent working and living conditions as contained in ILO Convention C189, and which must be enshrined in national law.
- Abuses against domestic/household workers constitute violations to human and trade union rights, and must be prosecuted.
- Governments must implement legal protection measures for domestic/household works, equal to the ones implemented for the rest of workers in other activities.
- The existing economic and social relations reflect the power of minority interests who have organized social life for their own benefit and to the detriment of the vast majority of the world's population.

- Domestic/household workers' organizations are part of the global labour movement and will join forces with all other workers in the struggle to change power relationships and to determine our own economic and social destinies, and secure freedom, justice, well-being, safe working condition, security and peace.
- Many domestic/household workers are migrants. IDWF promotes the universal/fundamental human and labour rights and the full rights of participation of all migrant domestic/household workers.
- Globally, women constitute the majority of people working as domestic workers, therefore organizations of domestic workers will promote the leadership of women within domestic workers' organizations and within the labour movement in general.
